Genesis (H#1078) is defined as "origin" or "birth" by the Strong's Exhaustive Concordance. The mysteries of the Kingdom of God await as you study this book.

Introduction

Most of my early years, I was told what to believe about God and the devil, creation and "the Fall," heaven and hell, and this created many harmful belief patterns in life. We tend to believe what we are told as children and my belief system collided with my internal guidance system as I became an adult. After years of unraveling literalism and contemplating metaphoric concepts, my outlook and my view of the Bible has drastically changed. I desire to study for myself, asking for spiritual guidance. If you feel this way, this workbook may be exactly what you've been seeking.

The Bible is written in prose and metaphor, literal and figurative language. First Corinthians 15:42-49 states that there is an earthy, natural realm and a heavenly, Spiritual realm. Genesis proclaims colorful stories of ordinary people, but it also foretells the glory and blessings of Spiritual promises. I am fascinated with stories in the Book of Genesis. I hope to provide the reader the opportunity to be amazed at the intricate weaving of the natural and the spiritual established in the beginning, in Genesis, and fulfilled throughout Scripture.

"Behold I will do a new thing..." Isaiah 43:19. "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away, behold all things are become new," II Corinthians 5:17. "A new creature," Galatians 6:15. "For the former things are passed away... Behold I make all things new," Revelation 21:4 & 5.

Investigate for yourself. Question. Seek. "...Mysteries are revealed unto the meek," Ecclesiasticus 3:19 (Apocrypha)

I used the King James Bible (KJV), Young's Literal Translation, and the Strong's Exhaustive Concordance during my study in creating this workbook. Please compare your favorite translation with these tools. Please understand that newer translations have changed words and omitted phrases; therefore, a seeker may miss the metaphoric pictures from Genesis to Revelation.
